Digestion

- Chew you food (20-30 times per bite)
- Drink 1/2 your body weight in ounces of water each day • Increase your veggies and fruits (unprocessed fiber)
- Make time for restroom habits
- Limit dairy products
- Breathe deeply

Blood Sugar

- Start your day with 20 ounces of water
- Eat a good breakfast
- Eat before drinking any caffeine or alcohol • Eat 3-5 times a day
- Limit processed food
- Get cardiovascular exercise

Nervous System

- Establish a healthy bedtime routine; try to get 8 hours of sleep a night • Sleep on your back or side
- Stretch 15 minutes a day &/or use a foam roller
- Don't smoke
- Limit alcohol consumption
- Find an outlet for your stress

Hormones

- Get plenty of Vitamin D
- Eat healthy fats (walnuts, olive oil, coconut oil, etc.)
- Limit the amount of soy in your diet. Soy is used as a filler in many products; it is even used in plastic water bottles; soy increases the estrogen in your body
- Limit artificial sweeteners
- Do yoga
- Limit the amount of gluten in your diet
- Develop a great sleep routine

Other

- Reduce social media activity. Be intentional about having real life interactions with friends and family (phone, video chat, in person).
- Reduce hours watching TV or playing video games. Use the time for self-care, friends/family, or other non-screen activities.
- Stop eating after 8 PM
- Get 7 to 9 hours of sleep each night.
- Quit smoking, tobacco, and other nicotine products.

- Mostly 2's and 3's: You need to stop, make a course correction and take action in that area
- Mostly 1's and 2's: You need to use caution, pay attention and start making changes in that area
- Mostly 0's and 1's: You're doing good in that area, keep moving

Think of it as if you are driving across country with a GPS. The more often you stop, pull off the road or take a detour (red), the more the GPS has to reroute itself. When the GPS is having to constantly recalculate and reroute, more energy is used, and your journey can become complicated. You need to make a course correction and take action to stay on the clearest route to wellness.
